Striking employees of the Standard Oil Company at Bayonne, N. J., terrorized that town for several hours to-day, taking advantage of the fact that the police force was inadequate to hold them in check

The violence which has marked the strike since its inception several days ago, resulting in several clashes in which police and strikers have been wounded, reached a climax this afternoon when 2,000 strikers, most of them armed, drove everybody from the downtown station of the Cenup, precarious, dishonoring compro- trai Railroad at Bayonne at the point of revolvers and rifles, and attacked the few men who tried to argue with them.

British Admiralty Takes Charge of Schedules and Sailings of Liners and Munitions Carriers Are Prohibited Until Further Orders.

NEUTRAL SHIPS ONLY LEFT THIS PORT TO-DAY

The schedules for practically all vessels sailing from this port, particularly those under the British and French flags, are completely disorganized to-day as the result of the German menace.

The officials of the British lines said they did not know when their ships would leave port, as sailing orders were now in the hands of the British Admiralty, which would transmit word when it was advisable
